

CHAPTER 3

Internal Operating Procedures

I. SUPREME COURT

§ 3.1 Prehearing

All appeals are subjected to the court's screening procedure after the appeal is docketed. Most cases are placed on the general calendar with argument limited to 15 minutes per side. Either the appellant or the appellee may request 20, 25, or 30 minutes by printing "oral argument" on the lower right portion of the front of the brief cover, followed by the desired amount of time. If oral argument is scheduled, the court will designate on the oral argument calendar the amount of time granted. The appellant and the appellee will be granted the same amount of time. Although the procedure is used infrequently in the Supreme Court, cases meeting the criteria of Rule 7.01(c)(2) may be placed on a summary calendar. Argument in summary calendar cases is limited to 15 minutes per side, if granted, unless sufficient reason is given to grant additional time. If argument is not requested within 15 days after counsel is notified that a case has been placed on the summary calendar, the case will be submitted on the record and briefs.

The Supreme Court regularly sits in Topeka six times a year for one week periods from September through May. Shorter special sessions are scheduled as needed. The Chief Justice sets the hearing docket four to six weeks ahead of each session. Cases entitled to preference are heard first, and other cases thereafter in the order of their docketing in the clerk's office.

At the time the hearing docket is prepared, the cases are assigned to the justices for writing. A later continuance or dismissal of one or more cases does not affect the assignment of the rest of the cases. The justices approach oral arguments in different ways, with most concentrating their efforts and those of their research attorneys on their own cases. A research attorney, under supervision of the justice to whom the case is assigned, prepares a prehearing memorandum setting forth the essential facts, the contentions of the parties, the main authorities relied upon, any additional authorities discovered, and the attorney's analysis. Those prehearing memoranda are distributed to all justices prior to oral argument, eliminating the need for extensive factual recitation during arguments.

§ 3.2 Decision

The Supreme Court's decision conference begins on the day of oral argument with additional conferences scheduled as needed. The preassigned cases are presented to the court by the justice who has the writing assignment. If the justice to whom the case was assigned is in the minority, that justice transfers the writing assignment to the justice next in descending order of seniority voting with the majority and receives in return a case of the transferee's choice. The form of the opinion, whether formal (published) or memorandum (unpublished), is tentatively determined at the decision conference.

§ 3.3 Opinions

Opinions are circulated among the members of the court for comments and suggestions. When a written dissent or concurrence is completed, the original opinion and the dissent or concurrence are circulated together. If the majority opinion is modified in response to the dissent, it is reviewed first by the dissenter for possible modification of the dissent.

When approved, opinions may be filed with the clerk of the appellate courts on any Friday. Filing occurs at 9:30 a.m. in the appellate clerk's office. Copies are mailed to counsel and the district judge on the day of filing. See Rule 7.03.

§ 3.4 Motions and Original Actions

Routine motions may be ruled on by the Chief Justice. Other motions are assigned to the justices on a predetermined rotation basis for presentation to the full court. Those motions are taken up at motions conferences called from time to time by the Chief Justice or, if expedited consideration is warranted, at special ad hoc meetings.

Petitions in original actions (quo warranto, mandamus, habeas corpus) are assigned to justices, except the Chief Justice, on a predetermined rotation basis for presentation to the full court in conference. The court takes appropriate action pursuant to Rule 9.01.

Motions for rehearing are referred to the justice who wrote the opinion; that justice presents the motion in conference to the full court. Four votes are required to grant or deny a motion for rehearing or modification.

§ 3.5 Petitions for Review

Petitions for review of Court of Appeals decisions are assigned in rotation to individual justices, except the Chief Justice, for presentation to the full court in conference. Three votes are sufficient to grant a petition for review. When a petition for review is granted, the case is scheduled for oral argument and assigned for presentation in conference and opinion writing under the practice followed for other appeals to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court's denial of a petition for review does not constitute an expression of opinion on the merits of the case. Rule 8.03(f).

If the Supreme Court determines that review has been improvidently granted, a per curiam opinion may be issued stating as much and approving the Court of Appeals opinion or disposition of the case. Rule 8.03(h)(1).

§ 3.6 Disqualification

A justice who is disqualified does not participate in the consideration or decision of the case. In appealed cases an even division of the remaining justices means the decision appealed from is affirmed. See Pierce v. Pierce, 244 Kan. 246, 767 P.2d 292 (1989) (review of a Court of Appeals decision by an equally divided Supreme Court); Paulsen v. U.S.D. No. 368, 239

Kan. 180, 182, 717 P.2d 1051 (1986) (review of a trial court decision by an equally divided Supreme Court). In original actions, however, four votes are required for a decision. See Kan. Const. Art. 3, § 2. In such cases, and particularly in appealed cases where the issue is one of great public importance, an active district judge, an active Court of Appeals judge, or a retired justice or judge may be assigned to sit with the court and participate fully in the hearing and decision process in lieu of the disqualified justice in order to insure a decision. Kan. Const. art. 3, § 6(f); K.S.A. 20-2616; K.S.A. 20-3002(c).

II. COURT OF APPEALS

§ 3.7 Prehearing

All cases are screened by the Central Research Staff as soon as the docketing statement is filed. The purpose is to categorize the cases for complexity of the factual and legal issues involved, determine whether jurisdictional questions exist, and generally assist in the process of calendaring the case in either of the two appellate courts.

After the appellant’s and appellee’s briefs are filed, cases are screened by senior staff attorneys to determine appropriate calendaring and to focus research. Cases meeting the criteria of Rule 7.02(f)(2) are placed on the Court of Appeals summary calendar; other cases are placed on the general calendar.

Summary calendar cases are deemed submitted to the court on the briefs without oral argument. Any party who wants oral argument on a case assigned to the summary calendar docket may file a motion requesting oral argument. The written motion for oral argument must be served on all parties and filed with the appellate court clerk within 15 days after notice of calendaring has been mailed by the clerk. Rule 7.02(f)(4).

In cases assigned to the general calendar or where a motion for oral argument has been granted, oral argument is limited to 15 minutes per side. Either the appellant or appellee may request the court to grant additional time for oral argument by printing “oral argument” on the lower right portion of the brief cover, followed by the desired amount of time. If oral argument is granted, the court will designate the amount of time allowed on the published docket. The appellant and the appellee will be granted the same amount of time. Rule 7.02(e).

About 60 days ahead of each scheduled hearing the Chief Judge sets the docket. Cases expedited by statute, or by court policy, are the first to be assigned to a docket. A copy of the docket, specifying when and where the case will be heard, is mailed to each counsel of record. Factors taken into account in setting each hearing docket include: where the cases arose; suggestions by counsel as to the desired location for hearing (Rule 7.02(c)(3)); suitability and availability of courtroom facilities; and the number of cases in a given area that are ready to be argued. The court hears cases in panels of three judges each. Normally, four panels sit simultaneously, each in a different location, once a month for eleven months of the year. The Court of Appeals often uses retired appellate judges to complete panels, two full-time Court of Appeals judges plus one senior judge on a panel.

Each case is tentatively assigned by the Chief Judge to a judge on the hearing panel. Under judicial supervision, the research attorney for the judge to whom the case is tentatively assigned or a central staff attorney then prepares a prehearing memorandum setting forth the essential facts, the contentions of the parties, the main authorities relied upon, any additional authorities discovered, and the attorney's analysis.

The prehearing memorandum is distributed to each judge on the panel at least one week prior to hearing. Before the hearing, each judge on the panel reads at least the briefs and the prehearing memorandum. When feasible, a prehearing conference of the panel members may be held to sharpen issues and guide questions to counsel from the bench.

§ 3.8 Decision

Each case is decided by the panel that heard it at a conference held after the hearing. Time permitting, decision conferences are often held after the day's hearings are concluded. Otherwise, they begin the day after a session is completed, although they may be adjourned from time to time to permit further research. If the judge to whom the case was tentatively assigned is in the majority, that judge prepares the opinion. If that judge is in the minority, the presiding judge reassigns the case to another judge in the majority. The now-dissenting judge receives a case of the transferee's choice. At the decision conference, a tentative decision is made as to whether a formal (published) or memorandum (unpublished) opinion is required. Rule 7.04.

§ 3.9 Opinions

Draft opinions are circulated first to members of the hearing panel for comments, suggestions, and approval. Any dissent is returned with the original opinion to the author of the majority opinion. If the majority opinion is modified in response to the dissent, it again is submitted first to the dissenter for possible modification of the dissent. To promote uniformity of decision, each opinion is also circulated to all available members of the court who did not participate in the decision, but only after judges joining in the majority opinion and dissent are satisfied with the respective opinions. Further modifications may be made but, if modifications go beyond formalities of punctuation or style, each member of the court is given an opportunity to read and comment on the opinion in final form before filing.

Each Wednesday morning a court conference is held by all available members of the court. At this conference, all opinions ready for filing are delivered to the Chief Judge for delivery to the clerk for filing. Copies are mailed to counsel and the district judge at the same time the opinions are officially filed and made public at 9:30 a.m. on Friday.

§ 3.10 Motions

All routine motions, not disposed of by the clerk under Rule 5.03, are referred to the court's motions attorney who works under the supervision of a motions panel composed of three Court of Appeals judges designated by the Chief Judge. Each member of the panel serves as motions judge on a rotating basis. The motions judge is responsible for ruling on most routine motions that come before the court. The motions judge has discretion to refer any matter to the full motions panel for decision.

Motions for rehearing are decided by the panel that decided the case. Motions for rehearing en banc are distributed to all members of the court and, on the request of any member of the court, a nonbinding poll is taken of the entire court for the guidance of the panel ruling on the motion.

§ 3.11 Disqualification

Before a docket is set, the Chief Judge circulates to each judge on the panel a list showing case captions, the name of the trial judge, and the names of counsel in each case. Each judge examines the list and reports to the Chief Judge if disqualified in a case. Another judge is then assigned to sit with the panel on that case, or the case is assigned to another panel.

III. CONFIDENTIALITY

§ 3.12 Confidentiality in the Appellate Courts

The integrity of the judicial process requires that many of the internal workings of the appellate courts be held in strictest confidence. Justices, judges, and court staff and personnel shall hold confidential the results of a decision conference or the views expressed by, or vote of, any participant. Likewise, the identity of a justice or judge to whom a case has been assigned is confidential until the opinion is filed. If the opinion is filed per curiam, the identity of the author remains confidential indefinitely. Copies of all writings and papers concerning court matters, including the contents of research memoranda, are confidential.
